It Takes a Village and Other Lessons Children Teach Us By Hillary Rodham Clinton

For more than 25 years, Hillary Rodham Clinton has made children her passion & her cause. This book chronicles her quest to discover how we can make our society into the kind of village that enables children to grow into able, caring, resilient adults. False nostalgia for 'family values' is no solution. Nor is it useful to make an all-purpose bogeyman or savior of government. By listening to the children themselves, by looking at what other countries & cultures do for their children & we do not, & by identifying places where our 'village' is flourishing, we can begin to create for our children the better tomorrow they deserve.

Editorial Review

Amazon.com Review

The First Lady, a longtime child advocate, expresses her concerns for the children of today's world and offers her ideas for developing our society into one that values children's unique contributions.

Review

A wake-up call...a comprehensive look at what our children need and want and deserve -- and aren't getting....We should all be reading it, learning from it, and acting on it. --Susan Larson, New Orleans Times-Picayune

GRAMMY WINNER!

For more than twenty-five years, First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton has made children her passion and her cause. Her experience with children has strengthened her conviction that how children develop and what they need to succeed is inextricably entwined with the society in which they live and how well it sustains and supports its families and individuals. In other words, it takes a village to raise a child.

It is time, Mrs. Clinton believes, to acknowledge that we have to make some changes for children's sake. Advances in technology and the global economy along with other developments in society have brought us much good, but they have also stressed the fabric of family life, leaving us and our children poorer in many ways - physically, intellectually, emotionally, spiritually.

She doesn't believe that we should, or can, turn back the clock. False nostalgia for "family values" is no solution. Nor is it useful to make an all-purpose bogeyman or savior of "government." But by looking honestly at the condition of our children, by sifting the past for clues to the structure that once bound us together, by identifying places where our "village" is flourishing, and, most important, by listening to the children themselves, we can begin to create for our children the better tomorrow they deserve.
